Welsh 2 Day

This year the famous Welsh 2 day race coincided with a European Enduro Championship round in Poland so team KORR was divided, Greg went to Poland to defend his championship lead and Daryl opted to again ride the Welsh and to try a repeat his win from 2009.

The Welsh for those not familiar is one big lap each day and only 3 tests and usually brings very close racing and this year was no different, the opening cross country test at Crossgates went to Daryl by just 2 seconds from Tom Sagar with Edward Jones, Ady Smith and Danny McCanny closely behind. The course was super dry and the only thing that troubled the riders was dust on the forest roads. Test number 2 at the Cwmythig Hill circuit near Rhayader would see things get even closer but again Daryl won by a second from Sagar who was pushing really hard. The final and 3rd test of the day in the grassy fields of "Abbey" would see the closest action and only half a second separated Daryl and Tom.

Day 2 used a reversed course but with only 2 special tests – so no room for mistakes, Daryl had almost 4 seconds in hand from Day 1 and rode smart and defensively to finish close behind Tom on each test and win the event outright for the 4th time.

Daryl Bolter " Its been a great event, fantastic weather and only the dusty forest tracks making things tricky, everything went according to plan and I just rode at a comfortable pace. Tom Sagar was pushing really hard and also riding very well, so with only a couple of tests each day it was important not to take too much risk or make any mistakes"
